

KEY ARMS CONTROL TREATY THREATENED

The New START treaty places limits on Russian and U.S. strategic nuclear weapons, verified by a system of mutual inspections which promotes stability and reduces the danger of accidental war. But New START expires in 2021 unless extended, and White House staff have indicated that no decision has been made on whether to seek extension.

Several bipartisan bills are pending in Congress calling for extension of the treaty. Contact your Senators with the message (preferably personalized in your own words): “Please co-sponsor the Lugar-Tauscher bill, S.2394, supporting renewal of the New START treaty. Launching a new nuclear arms race would be an extremely dangerous mistake”
