

Two Existential Threats: Climate Crisis and Nuclear Weapons

For decades the “Doomsday Clock” has been showing how close we are to the midnight of nuclear holocaust. But the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists made their most recent move – to 2 minutes and now only 2 minutes are because the climate crisis has joined nuclear weapons as another existential crisis that threatens human survival. See information at www.thebulletin.org

The problems are similar in several ways:

- Powerful political and economic forces created and are perpetuating BOTH the climate crisis and the nuclear weapons crisis.
- BOTH crises persist because people deny the horrible dangers – and pretend that the status quo is acceptable.
- Many people feel despair that disempowers and immobilizes them, allowing BOTH to persist.
- Grassroots people are organizing to stop BOTH crises through nonviolent people-power movements of volunteers throughout our region, our nation and our world.
- BOTH crises need smart strategies to urgently reach bold goals.
- How can organizers on BOTH issues learn from the other?
